

Style: Holiday Clothing Tips

necessary changes for the existing wardrobe.

Her best holiday tip for women was: Start with a solid foundation, since the easiest way to slim down is to buy slimming undergarments. Invest in a great bra and a quality body-shaper to help revive your figure and look your best under formal attire. Buy a beautiful jacket, which is the ideal way to hide excess weight in the tummy area while looking your best at a holiday function.

Buy a jacket you can wear inside and out and remember to follow the three F's: Fitted, Flattering and Forgiving. This season, invest in a jewel-toned, rich fabric with festive embellishments such as a sheen or brocade material.

Best tip for men: Low-rise doesn't work for everybody. Make sure the rise of your pant is just high enough to cover the widest part of your stomach. The least flattering thing a man can do is have a Santa belly hanging over the top of his belt. Buy a neutral-colored, fitted jacket in a quality cashmere blend and wear with confidence.

"This holiday season, the hottest trend is to add accessories with sparkle," said Kearn. "Don't go overboard, but adding a touch of shimmer to accessories is the best way to appear festive and taking attention out of that extra weight. Add a scarf with a sheen, a purse with a shine or shoes with a sparkle. Jewelry is another great way to update your look and draw attention to a place you want it."

Nurses: Walk Out, Picket

The nurses want better policies regarding staffing ratios during shifts, meal and rest breaks, improved procedures for patient handling, and improved retirement benefits.

"Sutter has put all this money towards replacement workers for strikes when they could use it to improve services," Jacobs said. "This is not about wages—it's about patients, patients, patients!"
