The Return of the Gentleman: Fashion Trends For Men

By Orene Kearn, AICI
SPECIAL TO THE FORUM

The overall trends for men are in the theme of "Return of the Gentleman." (This follows what is happening in women's style, with the return of grownup, sophisticated dressing.) Although there are certain trends which depend on the lifestyle of the man, overall it is a return to well-tailored, more formal and traditional clothes. Some of the major trends are:

- Oxford shoes, with or without wingtips, are popular again. Loafers with a high vamp (they are high up on the top of the foot) as well as boots under slacks are fashionable.
- Shirts are beautifully tailored in white or color with stripes and other patterns.
- Traditional cashmere sweaters always look great, whether they are turtlenecks, V-necks or crew-necks. Cardigans are back in style and they are showing them for all ages.

- Suits. Three button or higher two button suit jackets are still the most fashionable (and not too edgy). However, the rule is whatever fits your body type. If you look better in a two button suit, then go with it.

Also, double-breasted suits are showing up again. On the slightly edgier side (believe it or not), three piece suits are making a comeback! But of course they are coming back differently, with higher arm holes and jacket lengths. This look may still be too much on the horizon for the average man.

- A "signature" jacket that you can wear with everything, from jeans to dress slacks is the look this season. In addition to blazers and sport coats, this could be other styles of jacket or coats, such as of a car coat, a "walking jacket", and other more casual styles of jackets.

Leather and suede jackets are always in fashion and this season they showing a variety of lengths and styles - from longer coats to bomber (or aviator) length. They are also showing outdoorsman, rugged looking coats such as shearling. There is a "signature piece" for every body type and height!
